JOHN JAY COLLEGE
CRIMINAL ^{of} JUSTICE

COLLEGE OF POLICE SCIENCE

MAHARAJA

John Jay College of Criminal Justice

By action of the Board of Higher Education in December, 1954, a program of cooperation with the Police Department of the City of New York for the more effective education of the police force was undertaken. The initial step in the joint educational program was the establishment of a curriculum in Police Science leading to the Associate in Applied Science degree which had been registered by the State Education Department. Course work in the A.A.S. program began in September, 1955. A Specialization in Police Science in the curriculum leading to the Bachelor of Business Administration degree was approved in 1957 and the first matriculated students were admitted to the program in September, 1957.

In June of 1964 the Board of Higher Education established The College of Police Science as a senior college in the City University of New York. It opened in September of 1965 and Michael J. Murphy was named Acting President. The College absorbed the undergraduate program in Police Science which had been offered at the Baruch School. In September of 1966 Leonard E. Reisman was named President of the College and in 1966 the College's name was changed to more accurately reflect its concern with the whole field of criminal justice.

The educational program of the College has as its objectives the broad education of law enforcement officers, professional training for police and other services in the process of criminal justice, improvement of the process of criminal justice, development of necessary goals of leadership, and the fostering of professional achievement in public service.

A graduate program in Public Administration began in September, 1967. Although the College's program is intended primarily for personnel of the various criminal justice agencies of New York City, it is also open, both in the graduate and undergraduate division, to non-City criminal justice agency personnel and to a limited number of civilian students.

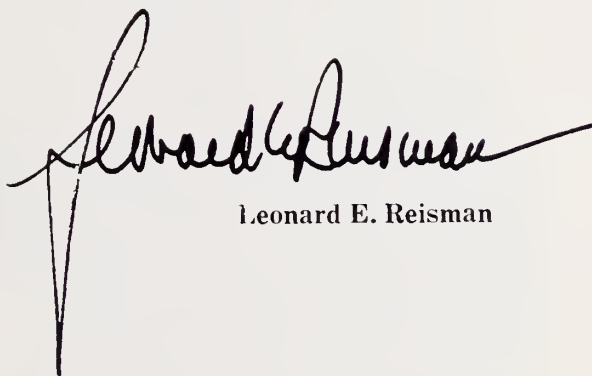

The President's Message

I should like to add my personal congratulations to the graduating class. It was a matter of great personal pride and satisfaction to preside at Commencement and to present to each graduate his diploma in recognition of years of dedicated application to professional and personal development through higher education. I know only too well the sacrifices that have been made in this successful pursuit of a degree, which reflect great credit on the personality, integrity, and intellectual capacities of each of you.

I pledge that I will do all in my power to effect the widespread recognition that your accomplishments deserve. In the years ahead, I am sure you will point with pride to the fact that you were a part of this magnificent new institution dedicated to the further professionalization of law enforcement services.

We trust that you will maintain your association with the College in every possible way. You have our full esteem and support.

A large, stylized handwritten signature in black ink, which appears to read "Leonard E. Reisman". The signature is written in a cursive style with a long, sweeping horizontal line at the end.

Leonard E. Reisman

A Message From the Dean of Faculty

I am grateful for the opportunity to offer my personal congratulations to all the graduates of the John Jay College of Criminal Justice.

All of the staff at this College, myself included, are fully aware of the obstacles you have had to overcome in getting a degree on a parttime basis. We appreciate the strong desire, seriousness of purpose, and dedication to learning which have characterized your efforts at the College. You have every reason to be proud of your achievement. For the entire faculty and myself, I offer you our heartiest congratulations and best wishes for the future.

Donald H. Riddle

A Message From The Dean of Students

The Latin motto "Ad astra per aspera" — to the stars through adversity — is particularly appropriate to the student who earns his degree from John Jay. The route from enrollment to the earning of the degree is a long and arduous one and the man, or woman, who accomplishes it may justifiably pride himself in its achievement. Those of us who are concerned with the student are truly proud of him and his long suffering family and hope that the present attainment will serve but as a spur to even greater accomplishments in the future. There are many galaxies yet to be conquered and, I am certain, the men of John Jay will help conquer them.

*Excerpt From Commencement Address by
Mayor John Lindsay*

"Few people realize what has gone on behind these walls leading up to today's ceremony. Most would guess that you had spent your time with guns and law books. But you have been students first and policemen second. Almost eighty percent of your courses have been in the liberal arts. And that is sound, for this kind of general education is the best training for the limitless problems that are part of police work.

Compared to your fellow college graduates across the nation, you are somewhat unique. You are already involved in one of society's most taxing, most responsible, and most important professions. College for you has not been a stopping-off place or an intermediate step before embarking upon a career. Rather, College at John Jay has been a means of real personal education, and, only secondarily, of career development. But that chain is crucial: for nothing will create a better professional police officer than a well-educated individual."

Excerpt From Address by Class Valedictorian

"Before taking leave of my fellow-graduates, I'd like to ask you to focus your attention on Don Quixote, the Knight who tried to change the world single-handed. In the long-running musical "Man of La Mancha" he sings a song in which he espouses the principles by which he lives. These could well be adopted by all of us in law enforcement.

First . . . To dream the impossible dream. Throughout these United States the idea of police professionalization is being vigorously pursued by a host of career-minded individuals and organizations. But there are many who believe it will never come to pass. We must have the courage to dream this "impossible" dream.

Second . . . To fight the unbeatable foe. Crime will never be completely beaten, yet we must do battle. This graduating class has the background to contribute greatly to this fight.

Last . . . To reach the unreachable star. Many of our Police Commissioners came up through the ranks to occupy the department's top job. Back in the 1940's a young patrolman studied law at Temple University in Philadelphia. He was reaching for that unreachable star. Commissioner Leary's success is living proof that it can be done.

John Jay has given us a solid base from which to proceed. Secure in our beliefs we can fight the unbeatable foe. High in our ideals, we can dream the impossible dream. And, with the help of divine providence, using your present accomplishment as a launching pad, you can reach the unreachable star."

B. S. Graduates

JOSEPH J. BARRON

Joe is the father of three girls and hopes to become a teacher some day. Born in Manhattan, he holds two Excellent Police Duty citations and is fond of reading. Classmates say his slogan is "Never say die."

GEORGE BEST

George ranks high on the list as class comedian, but he is serious about graduate school. His lovely wife and two children share his enthusiasm for work and he enjoys skiing in his spare time.

HENRY E. BLAKE

"Hank"

Retired now, Hank's future plans are to keep an open mind. A former unit-training sergeant, he attended Brooklyn College and enjoys golf and 8mm photography. His most familiar class saying is, "It's about time."

ROBERT JAMES BRATKO

"Red — the bald one"

Bob, with two girls and a boy, lists adjustment to the household as part of his future plans — one day he hopes to be a teacher. He is a member of the Knights of Columbus and the Pulaski Association, and is often heard to say, "I'm of the opinion," and, "realistically, I would say."

JAMES CASEY

With his AAS from Brooklyn College and the BS safely tucked away, Jim plans to enroll in the graduate program at John Jay. His wife, Patricia, and daughter, Carol, look forward to the day when he will be teaching. Jim is an avid photography and baseball enthusiast.

THOMAS R. CARROLL

Tom, a Captain in the NYPD, holds his AAS from Baruch School. A resident of the Bronx, his future plans are to remain healthy and happy.

FRANCIS M. CONNOLLY

You can't lie to Frank — he's a polygraph examiner in the NYPD. The happy father of five, he plans to continue in Jay's graduate program. His spare time finds him actively involved in little league.

EDWARD R. DONOVAN

The father of five children, Ed plans to go on for his Master's degree and hopes to teach one day. He and his wife love the outdoors and their dream includes a home with land for their own horses. Ed is a golf and football buff who also enjoys reading.

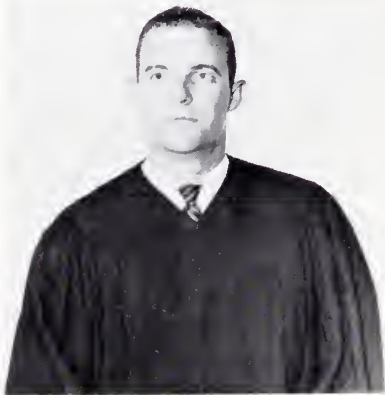

MARY T. DUIGNAN

Mary is assigned to the Policewoman's Bureau in the NYPD and was born in Woodside, N.Y.

JAMES PATRICK FEENEY

A Manhattanite by birth, Jim's future plans are to "Keep pushing." He is a graduate of Bryant High School.

MICHAEL P. FORBELL
"Mickey"

Mickey, the father of two, is a graduate of Bishop Loughlin Memorial H.S. where he won a medal for Public Speaking. He enjoys golf and reading and looks to "going up the ranks" in the future.

THOMAS J. GOLDRICK
"Goldy"

Tom is a community relations man in the NYPD and the father of five children. His extra-curricular activities include singing in the church choir, bowling, and golf. "Goldy" is remembered by the faculty for his most familiar saying, "Can you give us some idea of the questions?"

CHARLES C. GOODENOUGH
"Chuck"

With a scholarship to law school firmly in his grasp, "Chuck" is considered one of the "most popular" guys on campus by his classmates. He is a detective squad commander in the NYPD, married, a father, and an all around good guy. His most familiar saying is, "unbelievable."

JOHN J. GRIMES

"Johnny"

Johnny lists grad and law school for future plans. He is a detective in the NYPD, married and a member of Omega Psi Phi fraternity.

NICHOLAS J. HARDY, JR.

Nick holds eleven departmental citations in the NYPD. The father of three children, he is a detective in the NYPD and his future plans include teaching.

ALFRED HARPER

Al will best be remembered for his playing the lead role in John Jay's first major production, "The Trial." Married, and the father of three children, he holds twelve citations in the NYPD. Retired as a sergeant, his future plans are in the field of public administration.

RAYMOND HICKEY

CLIFFORD JAMES

Cliff is a sergeant in the NYC Transit Police, he is married and the father of two daughters. He enjoys sports in his spare time.

TIMOTHY KEANE

FRANCIS P. KOOPMAN, JR.
"Frank"

Frank, who is married and the father of four children, hopes to go on to Law School. He is active in the Steuben Association, speaks fluent German — his wife Elisabeth was born in Germany — and he enjoys photography. Formerly a Detective with the Bureau of Special Services he is now a Sergeant in the NYCPD.

DANIEL LEONARD

JAMES J. MAHER

"Jim"

Married to the former Helen O'Brien, Jim and Helen have four children — Helayne, James, John and Ann. He graduated Summa Cum Laude from John Jay and is continuing his education in the Masters program. Jim is a Captain in the NYPD and a former torpedo-man in the Navy.

WILLIAM J. McCULLOUGH

"Bill"

Class valedictorian, Bill graduated Summa Cum Laude. He is a retired NYPD Captain, is presently teaching and is a consultant to the State Division for Youth as well as a Colonel in the Army Reserve. His lovely wife, Doris, and son, Malcolm, look forward to his completing his Masters studies. Bill enjoys golf in his spare time and, somewhat belatedly, is considered by his classmates as "one of those most likely to succeed."

GEORGE MANNING

George, a Lieutenant in the NYPD, is married and the father of two.

ROBERT T. MANNING

"Bob"

A former Marine, Bob is a graduate of John Jay High School as well as John Jay College. He has a wife, Ruth, and son, Robert, Jr. Future plans are in the field of education — developing means for presentation of educational material.

PHILIP MARCUS

SALVATORE MATTEIS
"Sal"

Sal, a Cum Laude graduate, is married and has three children. He enjoys handball and swimming in his spare time. Future plans include graduate studies.

JOSEPH P. McNALLY

Joe, the father of four, already has a son, Gregory, in the NYPD. Joe is a Captain in the department and holds several departmental citations. He is a former "Questioned document" analyst and a member of the International Association of Identification as well as the American Academy of Forensic Sciences.

ARTHUR J. McNEVIN

With two children already in College, Art is just a step ahead of them. He also has two children in public school. Formerly a radioman in the Navy, he is now a Lieutenant in the NYPD. Art enjoys reading and fishing and his future plans include studying for a Masters degree.

GEORGE J. MULLINS

A Lieutenant in the NYPD, George holds a law degree from St. John's Law School and an AAS from Baruch School.

LORRAINE O'DONNELL

Fond of art, swimming, sailing and skiing, "Rain" is a proud mother and a Police-woman in the NYPD.
